

ABSTRACT

A fixing member is composed of an upper washer and a lower washer; and a sensor substrate is sandwiched and held with these upper and lower washers. A strain-detecting element is disposed on the sensor substrate. A strain sensor as 5 configured above is fixed onto a measurement target via the fixing member. Accordingly, the strain sensor does not generate an output signal when no external force is applied, demonstrating stable characteristics.